Education

Post-Graduate, Science Fiction Studies, Literature and Writing (1995 – Present).

Gunn Center for the Study of Science Fiction, Lawrence, KS.

Advisors and mentors: SF Grand Masters James Gunn and Frederik Pohl, plus dozens of award-winning SF authors, scholars, and editors.

Apprenticed in and co-taught the Center's annual Intensive Science Fiction Teaching Institute and SF Workshop with James Gunn for a month each year (1995 – 2010).

Mentored research in SF theory, critical approaches, history, writing, and pedagogy through seminars, workshops, guided readings, and refinement strategies. Ongoing critical reading and discussion of many new novels per year for the John W. Campbell Memorial Award jury (2002 – Present).

Studied under a diversity of SF scholars and authors, including Brian Aldiss, Paolo Bacigalupi, Stephen Baxter, Bradley Denton, Cory Doctorow, Andy Duncan, Kathleen Ann Goonan, Joe Haldeman, Kij Johnson, John Kessel, Nancy Kress, Geoffrey A. Landis, Ian MacLeod, Jack McDevitt, China Miéville, James Morrow, Claire North, Frederik Pohl, Pamela Sargent, Robert J. Sawyer, Charles Sheffield, Joan Slonczewski, Vernor Vinge, Robert Charles Wilson, George Zebrowski, and many other guests of the Center (1995 – Present).

The Schrödinger Sessions: Science for Science Fiction, Writers' Workshop (July 30 – Aug 1, 2015).

Joint Quantum Institute, University of Maryland and NIST; College Park, MD.

Grant-funded, intensive "crash course" in quantum physics for science fiction writers through three full days of lectures and discussions with the world's top quantum-physics researchers, guided tours of JQI's labs, and off-campus events with NASA officials and other scientists.

Instructors: Chad Orzel, Emily Edwards, Steve Rolston, M. Hafezi, P. Hess, E. Goldschmidt, C. Monroe, A. Childs, T. Porto, S. Eckel, S.J. Gates, J. Williams, R. Sundrum, A. Stairs.

Professional Seminars, Workshops, and Formal Training (1998 – 2002).

Microsoft Corporation, Six Sigma, and others; Seattle and Redmond, WA.

Rigorous, ongoing training in writing, editing, management, and various technologies.

M.A. (M.F.A.-equivalent), English – Creative Writing (1992 – 1995).

University of Kansas, Lawrence, KS.

Minors: The history, literature, theory, teaching pedagogy, and writing of science fiction.

Dissertation/Thesis: Transcendence (published).

Committee Director: SF Grand Master and Hall of Fame honoree James Gunn.

There being no better place to study SF literature and writing in the world – and nowhere to earn a PhD in the field (still true today) – I pursued the best available opportunity by earning what is today an MFA in creative writing with a strong emphasis in science-fiction scholarship and literature under the mentorship of SF education pioneer James Gunn, who offered all his science-fiction literature, scholarship, and writing courses during this time. Gunn's final student.

B.A. English – Creative Writing (1987 – 1991).

University of Wisconsin – Eau Claire, WI

Undergraduate emphases in Astronomy and Psychology (1985 – 1987).

University of Minnesota – Minneapolis

Undergraduate emphasis in Astronomy (Summer 1982).

University of Minnesota – Morris

Advised to take college courses in order to teach directed-study astronomy classes in high school.

Novel

Transcendence. Ed. Eric Reynolds. Overland Park, KS: Hadley Rille Books, Nov. 2010. (Invited)

Reprints:

Kindle Edition, Adobe, ePub, and HTML Creative Commons ebooks, November 2010.

Nook Edition ebook, March 2011.

Second edition (hardcover, trade paper, and ebook), August 2012. Still in print.

On the preliminary ballot for the Nebula Award.

Reviews:

"In the near future, technology pushes the world toward self-destruction. As a teenage hacker attempts to use his skills to find a girl he once loved and unwittingly betrayed, a super-tycoon uses his artificial constructs to increase his control over the world. Actors in a virtual reality drama start a real-time war in space, while an artificial intelligence decides to try on a physical form and live as a human. Short story writer McKitterick's first novel tells a larger-than-life cautionary tale of men and women in crisis and of the dangers posed by an out-of-control technology. VERDICT: Readers who enjoyed the cyberpunk feel of Neal Stephenson's Snow Crash as well as the cosmic fiction of James Blish's Cities in Flight should welcome the author's full-length sf debut." - Library Journal, December 2010. Transcendence. Hadley Rille. 2010. c.408p. ISBN 9780982946701. $29.95; pap. ISBN 9780982725696. $16.95. SF.

"McKitterick's first full-length novel is set in a dark, dismal populated galaxy where everyone is wifi-ed to computers and physical bodies are mere "meat," where reality is rewritten by participants to fit their self-images, and being "inthe flesh" is retro and frowned upon—yet "feedrapture-addiction" is the price one pays for becoming too computer involved. Two nearly simultaneous events have the power to upend all the accepted realities of this computer-driven galaxy—alien technology has been found on Neptune's moon Triton; and the Brain, which controls all computer interaction to EarthCo citizens, has become fully sentient. Amid the chaos, three men living on different planets, who at first glance have no connection, will cross paths during the next seventy-two hours as Earth and Neptune face off in a war that could mean the end of the entire solar system. McKitterick's narrative and its intricate setting creates a stark, thoughtful, and engrossing look at human society and its interactions with animate and inanimate objects." - Publisher's Weekly, March 2011. Transcendence. Christopher McKitterick, Hadley Rille (Ingram, dist.), $16.95 trade paper (408p) ISBN 978-0-9827256-9-6. Hardcover - 408 pages - 978-0-9829467-0-1.

"What's important is his understanding of the human condition." – Michael Allen, Tangent review.

"Brilliant." – Algis Budrys, Pilgrim and Solstice award-winning author of Who? and Rogue Moon (cover blurb).

"A gorgeous cyberpunk/space opera/coming-of-age/new-wave philosophical action novel. [McKitterick has] a gift for language and is a brilliant stylist, especially for adventure." – Kij Johnson, Nebula, Sturgeon, Crawford, and World Fantasy award-winning author of The Fox Woman and Fudoki (cover blurb).

"There has been a lot of talk about the New Space Opera. Chris McKitterick's TRANSCENDENCE may be the new New Space Opera – soap opera in space, contemporary realities meet future possibilities." – James Gunn, Damon Knight Grand Master and Hugo and Pilgrim Award winning author of The Road to Science Fiction and The Listeners (cover blurb).

"A wild ride through a hypertechnology world. Riveting." – Jack McDevitt, Nebula Award winning author of ECHO (cover blurb).

"[McKitterick's writing] exhibits elegance and grandeur of style." – Trent Walters, Speculon review.

"This is the kind of book our genre needs more of." – George Zebrowski, Campbell Award winning author of Brute Orbits (cover blurb).

"Beautiful, moving, and ambitious." – Ann Tonsor Zeddies, Philip K. Dick Award nominee and author of the Typhon series (cover blurb).

Service

University of Kansas Service

Gunn Center for the Study of Science Fiction

Director (July 2010 – Present).

Collaborate in interdisciplinary and inter-collegiate faculty and research groups. Grow the Center to serve students, the English Department, KU, and the field of Science Fiction Studies at large. Seek outside funding for awards and activities, plus donations of books, manuscripts, and other materials. Redesigned and took over teaching the Speculative Fiction Writing Workshop, plus organize and bring in guest authors and editors each year. Redesigned and took over teaching the Intensive Science Fiction Institute. Collaborate with the KU Libraries and other academic units across campus, state, nation, and world. Continue to develop the Center's website and create more content (260+ pages, 30,000 unique visitors/year). Co-organize and run the annual Campbell Conference. Served as Nominations Director for the annual Theodore Sturgeon Memorial Award. Serve as John W. Campbell Memorial Award juror and Nominations Director. Continue to successfully acquire outside funding each year for AboutSF educational-outreach program, work with Web developers, and manage two employees and volunteers. Recruit and manage Center volunteers. Build and manage lending library of SF materials and work with borrowers. Write countless papers, articles, news releases, publicity materials, proposals, and administrative documents. Give frequent presentations and interviews. Serve as student advisor, mentor, and thesis/dissertation advisor. Serve as faculty and GTA consultant, work with visiting scholars, and much more. From 6 – 40+ hours/week.

Associate Director (July 2002 – July 2010).

Accepted more administrative duties and continued apprenticeship after moving to Lawrence: Continued co-teaching the Science Fiction Writer's Workshop and Intensive Institute on the Teaching of Science Fiction. Further developed the Center's website and created much more content. Organized and ran the annual Campbell Conference. Served as Nominations Director for the annual Theodore Sturgeon Memorial Award. Served as John W. Campbell Memorial Award juror and Nominations Director. Co-developed AboutSF, successfully acquired outside funding each year for student employees, and managed 1-2 employees as well as volunteers. Wrote countless papers, articles, news releases, publicity materials, proposals, and administrative documents. Gave frequent presentations and interviews. Served as student advisor and mentor, faculty and GTA consultant, worked with visiting scholars, and much more.

Assistant Director (July 1995 – July 2002).

Assisted and apprenticed under James Gunn: Led Center activities, including co-teaching the Science Fiction Writer's Workshop and Intensive Institute on the Teaching of Science Fiction; developing the Center's website; helping organize and run the annual Campbell Conference; organizing the annual Theodore Sturgeon Memorial Award's nominations process; and so on.

Technical Communications

Technical-Communication Liaison (June 2002 – May 2013).

Served as consultant and partner for diverse KU academic units (Learning Communities, C-CHANGE, CReSIS, Graduate Writing Support Program, School of Nursing, School of Engineering, Physics Department, and more) to develop curriculum and mentor students and faculty. Frequently mentored non-KU faculty as well as former students new to teaching technical communications. Developed a five-course Certificate program for KU, developed curriculum for the courses, taught all courses on mostly experimental or overload basis to motivated students (most of whom went on to professional careers in the field). Presented frequent writing seminars, wrote and presented countless administrative proposals and reports, built and maintained student and public websites, funded and presented an annual student award, trained English Department GTAs and Lecturers, and much more. Worked with faculty, Chairs, and Deans to move program forward; ultimately, KU suffered too much disruptive change during this time, so I was released from KUTC duties to better focus on Gunn Center work. As of 2015, continue to teach one of the courses; maintain a vast set of resources for past and future students, GTAs, and Lecturers; and train new teachers.

Lecturers and Readers

Various duties (2005 – Present).

Work with guests, English and other departments, KU, area businesses and organizations, and the public to invite special guests and host SF-related events, arrange venue and video recording, arrange meals and housing, create schedules, design and distribute posters and other promotional materials, promote event across a multitude of news and social-networking outlets, and give introductions.
